Debating Cups Offered For Competition

Eliminations For Talbot Papineau Cup To Be Held Friday Afternoon

Finals Contested On Annual Prize Night Next Wednesday Night

WITH the annual Prize Night competition scheduled to be held this Wednesday instead of Tuesday as previously announced, the Debating Union will terminate its activities for the college year. Offered for competition will be the outstanding trophies awarded at McGill in this field of endeavour, the Talbot Papineau Cup, the Reford Challenge Cup, and the Arts Interclass Debating Shield.

The Talbot Papineau Cup, which is open to all male undergraduates, was presented for competition in memory of Talbot Mercer Papineau, a graduate of McGill in Arts and Law, a member of the Debating Society, who was killed in 1917 at the Battle of Passchendaele.

The preliminaries will be held this Friday at four o'clock and the subject will be announced in that day's issue of the Daily. The contest will take the form of a debate or a series of addresses. Any contestant may be called upon to support or oppose any proposition. The judges will select the two best speakers their choice to be made on the basis of language, delivery, matter and ability to convince. The two contestants thus chosen will proceed to the finals on Wednesday night. Previous winners of this trophy are Bernard Alexander, Fred Stone, David Lewis, Henry Scheffhausen, Arthur Marshall, Leon Smart, Alfred Pick, Melbourne Dick and Morton Godine.

Reford Challenge Cup

The Reford Challenge Cup is presented to the Society by Mrs. R. W. Reford in order to encourage impromptu public speaking among the members of the Society. It will be contested for by four members of the society selected by the executive. It will take place in the form of a debate the subject of which will be written on slips of paper to be drawn by the contestants. Three judges, one of whom will be a lawyer, the other a business man and the third a member of the university staff, will render a decision based on the fact that the speeches are to be impromptu.

The award of the Arts Interclass Debating Shield will bring to a close the Round Robin series of debates that have been held from time to time during the college year. The debating team winning the final of the series will be awarded the shield.

A display of all these trophies of the Debating Union Society may be seen in the exhibit window of the Redpath Library.

New Publication Issued; Features Story By Leacock

A NEW publication entitled McGill Graduates' Bulletin has just been issued under the auspices of the Graduates' Society in the nature of a Bulletin of news. As the foreword indicates, this Bulletin is intended primarily to reach and interest about 10,000 graduates who receive little or no information about their colleagues, or about the affairs of the University. They are apparently not members of the Graduates' Society and therefore do not enjoy the privilege of reading the quarterly publication, The McGill News. Nor do they receive the annual announcements from the University. It would seem that approximately only 3,000 graduates have direct contact with the University through the official publication.

The Graduates' Bulletin will appear from time to time, its continuance depending largely upon the welcome it receives from the graduates and friends of the University. It will be delivered gratis to all graduates, thanks to the generosity of one of the graduate Governors of the University.

The first issue, which contains a great deal of news, has as its feature article an account by Stephen Leacock of his tour of the West, and the contacts he made with McGill graduates. This is a particularly delightful and humorous article. Also included in the premier

Royal Vixens Contest Winner Announced

HAT IS PRIZE

Letters Submitted Under Pen-Names To Miss Shaw Of "Gazette"

BECAUSE her letter gave "a definite philosophy" of dress for the college girl, Marna Harding has won the hat offered as prize in the Royal Vixens Contest. The letters were submitted, under their pen-names to Miss Rosa Shaw, Women's Editor of the Gazette. Honorable mention was given to seven other letter-writers: Margaret Edgar, Mary Gregory, Lillian Savage, Phyllis McKenna, Elsie Gilmeister, Mary Chadwick, and Babe Armstrong.

In giving her decision Miss Shaw declared that the letter was "logical, clearly presented and convincing," and that it avoided the "pitfalls of digression." Recommendations are so worded that they can hardly fail to be interpreted correctly. The writer has wisely abstained from dogmatic statement as to trends of fashion and has defined her subject in concise general terms rather than losing sight of her objective in a mass of detail.

WINNING LETTER A College Wardrobe

Essentially, a college wardrobe should combine usefulness and versatility. The foundation laid the first year should be started with an eye to the three years to come. After this, no basic change in the colour-scheme should be made without due consideration.

The basis of the wardrobe is the coat. Preferably this is of fur, and most useful is the three-quarter swag length of brown or black. This type can be

Issue is an article by the Editor in chief.

The brochure of 16 pages is an account of the various activities of the graduates in the academic and athletic world. Engineer Nominations

Nominations are hereby called for the offices of the Engineering Undergraduate Society. These nominations must be in writing and signed by at least ten members of the Society. Nominations must be handed in to Harry by 5 p.m. Wednesday, March 17th.

The offices to be filled are: President (to be elected from Eng. '35).

Vice-President (to be elected from Eng. '35).

Secretary (to be elected from Eng. '35).

Treasurer (to be elected from Eng. '35).

Assistant Secretary (to be elected from Eng. '35).

worn with perfect correctness to a variety of functions ranging from a football game to a semi-formal date. The colour chosen forms the backbone of the colour-scheme of the entire wardrobe. The next most important thing to be considered is a fall suit. It should harmonize with the winter coat so that contrasting hats, scarves, gloves, etc. may be used equally well with both. A three-piece suit is ideal as it can be worn on warmer winter days with the top-coat, and the skirt may have many bright sweaters and blouses to go with it for general use throughout the year. Both coat and suit should be of the best material one can afford, and made in a well-tailored, conservative style. The individuality of the wardrobe must be in the accessories, especially in hats, purses, belts and gloves. One may also run riot with a variety of bright sweaters, and appease any cravings for beauty and originality in a raincoat and gay umbrella.

Next to be considered are afternoon dresses. These, like accessories, should always be either of the exact shade of the coat, or in sharp contrast to it. Anything in between is mediocre and dull. There should be at least two good dresses included, which can be worn both in fall and in winter if necessary; one, a well-tailored wool, and the other a dressy silk with all the latest style points that can be lavished on one garment.

For spring, the skirt and short coat of the fall suit may be worn, or else a

Daily Critics Storm Union En Masse

Two Hundred Engineers Assume Control Of Special Issue

ADMIT VOTES WERE "RAILROADED"

"We Want To Show That We Can Voice An Opinion"

IN a masterpiece of vote "railroading," Engineers yesterday assumed control of the special "Critics Issue" of the Daily which will be published tomorrow morning. Some two hundred of the Plumbers invaded the Union en masse, and in a meeting that lasted exactly four and a half minutes, chose four of their ranks to act as Managing Board. Approximately five Arts students were present.

Those elected to edit the paper were: Fritz Dugal, editor-in-chief; Ed. Norworthy, news editor; Jack Ross, sports editor; Jim Cameron, feature editor.

Engineers readily admitted last night that the entire elections had been pre-arranged. At a gathering of the Engineering Undergraduate Society yesterday morning, plans were made for the students to support candidates suggested by the Class of '30. As a result, the organization meeting of Daily critics, which was to have included all those interested in publishing a special issue, was controlled by the Engineers. Originally, invitations had been "extended" to Governors, Faculty, and Students.

No Shakespearean Language

The Daily Editor-in-Chief outlined plans to the Engineers yesterday at 5:15 p.m. He emphasized that the Managing Board elected pro tem would be given technical assistance by the regular Thursday night Daily staff. A Plumber interrupted to ask him the meaning of "pro tem". One of the few Arts students present insisted "that the people you choose can speak English".

Interviewed by the Daily, Fritz Dugal, Engineer editor-in-chief, discussed the intentions of his Engineer Board. "We didn't come to show the Daily how to put out a paper, but just to answer an invitation, and have a little fun. We do not intend to slam anyone or any organization. Our policy will be to treat everyone fairly."

He stressed that — "We haven't had four years' training in the art of expressing our thoughts in Shakespearean language, but we will do our best. We want to show that we can voice an opinion."

Coed Cadettes Swing It In Revue Chorus

Revue Performers Primed For Initial Offering In Moyse Hall

DRESS REHEARSAL

Play Destined To Be Successful By G. O.

THE unusual, the exotic, and the ultra-modern are the distinguishing characteristics of the costuming and scenery of the Red and White Revue of 1937. The scenic effects are particularly striking, and set a standard far above the productions of past years.

The final dress rehearsal, held in Moyse Hall last night, revealed that the loss of the inimitable Jack Waud has by no means proven irreparable. The producer, Walter Molson, has successfully striven to replace him with faster action, sparkling satirical cross-chat, and a wide variety of songs, dances, and skits.

Ashkanase Stars

Bernice Ashkanase, that vigorously-voiced vehicle of volatile variety, who stars as the poisonous heroine of Georgia Borgia, once again stole the show with her exceptional acting ability and a singing voice which makes Moyse Hall smaller than a telephone booth. Georgia Borgia assembles a wide variety of talent in the persons of Gerry McKee as the operatic Duke Tarara, Doom di E, Jim Stevenson as the Scotch Gardiner McHaggis, Bill Carter as the villainous Coroner, Ed Lemieux as her 2nd Husband, and Walter Lind as her no less infamous brother, Caesar Borgia.

We recommend the coroner's assistants, John Dillingers dressed like Tarzan.

"The Merchant of Venice, or, Just a Flesh in the Pan" is a clever take-off on the Shakespearean opus, and its dialogue is packed with topical satire and good fun. "Tiny" Webb, well-known to Revue-goers, and Audrey Atkinson, cute comedienne of former years, are back in all their old wise-cracking, side-splitting glory.

"The Honour of Cranbury Hall" neatly burlesques the "Schoolgirls' Own" type of story, and Kathleen Derby and Joan Whittaker as Castoria Fletcher, heroine of the old public house spirit, and Listerine Lambert, her daily rival, maintain the honour of the school in true musky melodramatic manner.

Mary Louise Crooks and Libby MacLeod lead the Chorus in some spirited dance refreshers which lend a kick to the entertainment. Joy Hendery and Frances Coghill in a rustic idyll and Peggy Morris and Bob Harvey in a special "Side Walks of New York" number combine perfectly in scintillating dance team features. The Chorus gives everything away and leaves nothing to be desired in displays of gorgeous girlhood.

Barbara Whitley's monologue "At the Hairdresser's" is one of the most finely executed pieces of real acting we have seen in years.

New Song Hits

Jimmy Moore, Iris Armstrong, and Bob Harvey's new song hits are more than up to Revue standards, and the background for Jimmy's "I Am Alone", composed by Walter Molson, is as ambitiously conceived as it is artistically executed.

We particularly commend the Scen-

REVUE CABARET

To Climax Long Period Of Preparation For Revue Performances

THE main ballroom of the Windsor Hotel will be the scene of the annual Red and White Revue Cabaret on Saturday night. The dance will begin immediately following the final performance of the Red and White Revue.

In keeping with its policy of former years, the Cabaret committee is keeping the price as low as possible. This year, as in many previous years, the tickets are selling for $4.50 a couple. Supper will be served.

The dancing will be to Howard Simpson and his Privateers. For the occasion, Simpson has augmented his band

Plans For Senior Dinner Introduce New Arrangement

Will Be Held In Windsor Hotel, May 11th

UNDER the chairmanship of Helen McMaster, plans for the annual Senior Dinner are well under way. The dinner will be held again this year at the Windsor Hotel, Tuesday evening, May 11, at 7 o'clock sharp.

This year a new invitation system is being tried out. Instead of each graduate depending on some undergraduate to specifically invite her, she will receive an invitation card. It is felt that seniors would prefer to make up their own parties instead of having it arranged for them. Thus the necessity of posting the invitation lists in the Common Room will be removed, and both graduates and undergraduates are asked to make their own reservations with the maitre d'hotel at the Windsor. Seniors are asked to reply to their invitations immediately to the committee member whose name is on their card. The cooperation of the three junior years is even more emphatically urged.

There is an assessment of $2 from each undergraduate attending and $1.50 from each undergraduate not attending. One of the innovations this year will be the serving of punch.

Today is the last chance for Daily Editors to get their picture taken for the annual. Anybody who does not get down to Notman's sometime today for a sitting will not be included in the composite.

and there will be ten pieces. As in previous years there will be a floor show, with various members of the Revue taking part. To date, there has been no information forthcoming as to the personnel of this show, but it is certain that the entertainment will be up to the usual high standards set by members of past Revues.

The patrons for the Cabaret are: Principal and Mrs. Morgan, Dr. and Mrs. Wilfred Bovey, Mrs. Vaughan and Professors Culliton and DuRoure.

The Red And White

TONIGHT the curtain goes up for the first performance of the Red and White Revue of 1937. This year, instead of the usual Wednesday night show, the Producer decided that an extra rehearsal would be in order. This idea was carried out and last night the complete Revue went through its paces. Tonight when the show commences the audience will see a well rehearsed and carefully planned show.

To many at McGill this annual show is just another college event to be taken in at the end of the year. It is usually considered to be a good entertainment with which to wind up a year of festivity before getting down to brass tacks with the books. There are others who consider the Revue the best student activity on the Campus — these people start to work early in the fall, they work unseen and for the most part unheard. The results of their work will be apparent to all who go to Moyse Hall this week-end to see their production.

This year the show is a little shorter than usual, but this has in no way detracted from its merits. In fact there are a great many things to be said in favour of this shorter Revue one of which is that it will leave more time for the Cabaret.

Few people, not in the cast or in the Revue itself, realize that practically all the talent in the Revue is found right in McGill. The various actors who appear before the public are undergraduates or graduate students with one or two exceptions, who are recent graduates. The great amount of time spent in making the scenery, the costumes and the direction of the production, to say nothing of the management of the business which includes arranging for properties, handling advertising and program and tickets is handled by the students.

When you support the Revue you are supporting one of the oldest college activities and one which gives perhaps the widest range of experience obtainable in any single organization on the Campus. The Revue offers experience in almost every branch of the theatre including the writing of skits, composing music and lyrics, playing in the orchestra, acting, singing, dancing — either chorus or solo — designing and making costumes and scenery, working on the stage, lighting, properties and make-up crews as well as the various business departments.

One of the finest things about the Revue is its esprit de corps. There is the feeling that the show must go on — this feeling has been so instilled in the members of former Revues that today there are a number of people, now out of college, who look back upon the Revue as one of the highlights of a college career. These people rally around when the annual production takes place with their support. In this way there is a continuity of ideas in the show and a fine tradition has been built up. We may rest assured that the show this year lacks nothing of its usual vim and attractiveness.

But no matter how much time and energy are spent on the production and management of the show it will not be a success unless it receives the whole-hearted support of all the men and women at the University. In the past there has been a great response to the announcement that tickets were on sale. This has again been the case this year — there are but a few seats left, and owing to the fact that there is one night less of Revue than usual it would be advisable to secure your tickets now for tonight, tomorrow or either of the two Saturday shows.

There is a great deal of satisfaction for those in the Revue to see the show actually come off — but this satisfaction is greatly increased if there is a responsible audience to witness the result of months of preparation. May we urge each and every one of you to see the show — not out of a feeling of loyalty to the College or because it is the thing to do — but because the show is well worth seeing. If you follow this advice we guarantee that you will not be disappointed.

Swan Song

A SWAN is said to sing its sweetest song when it dies. Whether this applies equally to other creatures, is a question for the cognoscenti to decide. We can however vouch for the columnistic swan song, which is far from sweet, and the note is very hard to find. It forms beautifully and in a promising fashion in the belly, and bids fair to emerge basso profundo, but somewhere in the vicinity of the Adam's apple there is a catch, and all that issues is a sort of screeching meow.

McParlfootin must take his leave. It would be easier, and wiser to fade out of the picture in silence, without any to-do, but a four year's habit cannot be broken without a little bit of a monkey wrench. For this reason the cynics will have good reason for chortling. It will present them with a swell chance to get their own back. Without any back talk, either.

Reminiscing

It's funny how it all began, too. Aitcheff was Feature Ed, at the time, four years ago, and we dropped him a note telling him that a Fiji Islander could do a better job than the incumbents in throwing together a column on Page Two. Aitcheff was sweet enough to say, "See if you can do better." We didn't, but somehow the habit stuck. For two years it was tongue-in-the-cheek stuff, looking down on campus things from a lofty perch, and poking fun at things, a pretty safe pastime from behind the protection of a fairly anonymous pseudonym. The motto used to be, to get out the required weekly thousand words or so, that when in doubt, take the C.O.T.C., season well with a dash of Labor Club, throw in a couple of Players' Club tid-bits, and serve the whole thing up with a couple of good Revue phone numbers. You were then sure of offending a maximum number of people, and that of course, in the usual run of events, made people read. The test always was just how many people of a morning would look at page two, and snicker.

Complications Result

Overlapping directorates sometimes led to trouble. There was the time that McParlfootin and the Players' Club publicity hound were one and the same guy. So to start things going, before one of the major productions, McP. called the P.C. publicity man all sorts of names, and the P.C.P.M. retorted with a fierce letter threatening to knock McP's head off.

Being two people at the same time, in this case wasn't much fun, because stalwart P.C. members offered the P.M. their help in beating up McP., while others who knew McP. and not the P.M., warned him against getting into fights with burly publicity men who might knock his block off. Naturally the fight didn't come off, but we never got fresh with ourselves again after that. How many tickets were sold only Stikeman can tell.

Superannuation, At Last

This is an age of youth, and there isn't much room for looking back. Besides it all sounds very silly, on second thought. However, just before he expires, McParlfootin does want to bid a fitting farewell to that Page Two of the Daily which was his weekly (on and off) roosting place, divided equally in time between the campus and the more or less grinding influences of New York. A sweet farewell, too, to those who read the thing. If they got any kick out of it, so much the better. The writing of the thing was loads of fun. But parting is "such sweet sorrow," and why prolong it?

Sic pereat McParlfootin. And ye, Olympean gods, don't take it too hard. Another wit will rise in time o'er the dry shadows of this witless fool to bazon on the feature page new follies and much greater foolishness.

So long!

Samovar

ONE of the most intimate, pleasing night clubs, in an otherwise poor cabaret-town, the Samovar this week presents the best floor-show that it has been our good-fortune to see in many a week. The show features two lovely ballerinas, formerly of the renowned Ballet Russe, who shine in a dance rendition of Tchaikowsky's "Danse Chinoise," from his Nutcracker Suite. Included in the festivities is a baritone, one Vladimir Dilloff by name, who sings in the Chaliapin manner. The star of the evening's entertainment is a Russian Cossack, Youry Yourlov, whose dancing numbers are a treat to watch. Comedy element is supplied by Sasha, the boy with the funny face and the stringed instrument.

The food and atmosphere at the Samovar leave little to be asked. The whole show is done in a fine festive spirit. A swingy five-piece band provides the dance-music for the patrons. For a swell evening's entertainment we recommend the Samovar whole-heartedly.

Borgias Fix Pizen
 Puddin' For Cardinals

Borgias Fix Pizen Puddin' For Cardinals
 MUSSOLINIVILLE, Italy, Mar. 11, 1937. — The recent sudden death of the thirty cardinals in Rome, a little suburb a few miles from here, is causing considerable interest in Mussoliniville. The findings of the coroner, which resulted in twenty-nine verdicts of heart failure and one of felo-de-se, are being received with a considerable amount of scepticism by citizens of this city. It will be remembered that all thirty of the cardinals met their accidental deaths simultaneously while being entertained at lunch by Georgia Borgia, Countess of Broccoli, a member of the famous and well-respected House of Borgia

It is believed that there is something very suspicious about the thirtieth death, which was hurriedly passed over by our most respected coroner, with the all-inclusive verdict of felo-de-se. We wish to point out that Rome is a long way from the sea, and that possibly the verdict should really be felo-de-Tiber.

The political situation here has been very much complicated by the unfortunate contemps, as there is not a sufficient number of members of the Borgia family to fill all the vacant cardinalships. An official source at the Capitol here has suggested that only some of these positions will be filled at the present time, and the remainder will be left open until such a time when the natural rate of increase of the Borgias will be sufficient to fill the remaining vacancies. There are also rumours of a new rule to be passed by the pope whereby all cardinals who do not belong to the House of Borgia—or what few that survive the Countess of Broccoli's ministrations,—will be superannuated at the age of seventy. While a slight amount of criticism is anticipated from the old guard of the Grand Old Party, yet it is thought that Cesare Borgia will be able to suppress this without very much difficulty, and little bloodshed or even poisoning is expected to be necessary.

Meanwhile, according to our Garden expert, the Countess of Broccoli's gardens are rapidly becoming the most beautiful in the country. They show the careful ministrations and good feeding which have been given to them by the Scottish gardener, McHaggis, helped, of course, by the countess in her own inimitable little way. When interviewed on the subject, McHaggis stated: "There is no better fertilizer for flowers than rich cardinals. Hoot, mon, need I say more?" He didn't, but Georgia, who was passing, smiled seductively, and extended a kind invitation, to visit her again at her reception during the performance of the Red & White Revue, which is to take place in Moyse Hall on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of next week, March 11th, 12th and 13th.

Co-Eds, Swirling In A Vortex

SIMILAR to the antomundane megatheria,—who abounded in the precursory dawn of life, the co-ed has obtained the acme, the ne plus ultra, of her cultivation of university thought, of her as yet unhindered ingress on campuses rightfully the domain of the male and the male alone.

We have previously shown in our editorials that the co-ed, unendowed with faculties of thought, sagacity, or expression, doomed by her contempt for masculinity to a sombre spinsterhood, is dashed to earth by college-life like a gnomeid wailing in the brine of human, or non-human, existence,—if such complete, utter, metaphysical vegetation can indeed be termed existence,—and now we culminate our dissertations with the terse statement that woman, figuratively speaking, should be the lool which receives the washings of man's learning; hence it follows, de facto, that the precincts of an educational institution are no place for her to carelessly pitch her tent.

The warden is leaving. Now is the time to turn the co-eds out of college and use the R.V.C. for a gymnasium et al.

Only then will it become possible, in a sense, for the Lost Atlantis of the co-ed to be reprieved de facto when, ratifying vive voce our endorsement of the importance of disinterring the esoteric pelf of femininity long encoined in the earth, she, striking at the root of the difficulty, concurs in establishing a Volapuk pad, ipso facto, in making-the-world-safer-for-xenob'oids, and at the same time hastens with velutinous-metacumbulation to relegate (as a belated bakishish) to the sex with the hispid physiognomy the tenure of the campus,—until her presence, even now heterogeneous and disquietant, comes to be deemed as untoward, dolorific, and nauseous as hippophagia.

Yee, we'll have no zannanas.

Dear Daily:
 I think that the time has come when someone should draw to the attention of the students the deplorable conditions existing in the Redpath Library. During the morning students wander in at all hours after their classes and sit and talk very audibly over the lectures that have just been given or about what a swell time they had last night and how they didn't get in till 3, 4, 5, in the morning and "they are just dead". In the afternoon the Library is more or less a social gathering of all the would-be-intellectual students who can't afford to go to a movie or else they are a little bit conscious stricken and think that they should at least give an air that they are taking their work seriously. In the afternoon there is quite a bit of dating done. Boys looking up from their work see a girl trying to study and think that she isn't so bad after all. Up they get and ask her to the Prom, Plumbers Hall, Cabaret or even a stroll to the Pit. Then there is much talk of time of calling et-etra and before you know it one hour has passed away. Then of course there is the occasional blonde venus that wanders over to sit with her lover on the boys side. Oh!!! the thrill to be near each other never seems to die away. It is only natural that the boys come over to the girls side and discuss Lab reports—they can't seem to stay away. At night the Library quietsens down to a certain extent but there still is that buzz-buzz of females talking over their men or else people wandering out to have a weed.

I hope that in this short criticism that people will understand what an awful place the Library is to study in and if only everyone would mind their own damn business everything would be swell.

Yours sincerely,
 AN IRATE R.V.C. ITE.

The Editor,
 McGill Daily.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the successful candidates in Tuesday's election and of thanking all those who nominated and supported me.

Sincerely,

 slightly lighter suit bought which would be also useful for summer trips. A new straw hat is a 'must' for spring, and new purse, shoes and gloves will do wonders to help on that slight feeling of light-headedness.

Included in the wardrobe must be two evening dresses. One, for fall and winter, of bright satin, taffeta or rich lace, and the other preferably of chiffon or any other light material for spring and summer. The evening wrap is, of course, a matter of taste. Some favour the long sheath-like velvet ones, while others prefer more extreme silk or metallic ones. Probably the velvet or 'bunny' wraps are most useful.

One may add to this summary any number of accessories, according to the state of finances. With regard to shoes it might be said that at least three pairs are necessary. Most co-eds like their comfortable pair of brogues for classes, and, of course, a dressier pair is needed for afternoons and another for evening. The summer wardrobe is naturally not considered here, except as far as spring clothes will be useful in it.

Little details, such as white collars and cuffs may make some girls' reputations, while others, finding these too much of a nuisance, may confine themselves to brighter trappings which need only be removed every week or so. However you express yourself, and everyone must have her own special extravagance in shoes, hats or purses, the main thing to be remembered is to make the foundation of your wardrobe as simple as possible, and never let yourself be persuaded to alter this main theme. Never buy anything, even at a bargain, which will not fit in with your other clothes. It will only involve the buying of other useless articles to go with it, and will be regretted for a long while afterwards. So here's to better-dressed college girls with an eye to the weather and an ear to Paris!

Although the general tenor of the letters was the same, calling for simplicity, chic tailoring and neatness, and condemning veils and ear-rings for the class-rooms, some of the writers differed widely in matters of detail. One writer advocated suede or kid pumps for college wear, adding, "If one must be sensible, wear medium-heeled tie-shoes"

Officials Appointed For Swimming Club

A new group of coaches will instruct McGill swimmers next year, as George Vickerson asked to be relieved of his duties, due to pressure of business activities at the annual Swimming and Water Polo Banquet in the Union last night. Coach Vickerson will be replaced by a group of instructors, although he himself will remain honorary coach, and adviser to the new group of coaches.

The other officers elected were: Honorary Pres. Prof. John Culliton; Captain of Water Polo team: Alan Bourne; and Capt. of Swimming team: Rupert Turnbull.

The graduation of Munroe Bourne will undoubtedly weaken the team, but it is expected that the McGill Men will show the class in this sport which has established them as annual threats.

Students' Society Meeting
McGILL UNION
Monday, March 15th 1937—5.00 P. M.

This meeting is called to hear the report of the Committee appointed by the Students' Executive Council to investigate athletics at the University.

The Committee suggests, that it would be preferable if students having questions they would like answered at this meeting, that these questions be submitted in writing to the Secretary of the Students' Society in the Union by Saturday noon, March 13, 1937.

Committee To Report At Student Society Meeting

Financial Administration Of Athletics Probed — Nolan, Crutchlow, Minnion, Form Committee — Intra-Mural Sports To Be Stressed Next Year — Students Support Called For

THE first, and probably the last, meeting of the Students' Society for the present college year, has been called for Monday next, in the Union Ballroom, at 5 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to hear the report of a special committee which has

To Adjust Finances
The committee was formed last March and was supposed to present its report last October; but a delay in the official auditing last summer has necessitated the three months of extra work this winter. The committee is comprised of John Nolan, as representative of the Students' Council; Art Minnion, as representative of the student body; and Everett Crutchlow, as representative of the Athletic Board. The Boys have been working primarily to re-adjust finances so as to permit abolishing the $10 Athletic fee, and are prepared to discuss in detail the budget of 1936-37.

Ev. Crutchlow will dispel the popular belief that the Hockey club pays for itself, and he will show not only why this is the case, but also why there can be no remedy under existing conditions. At the same time, he will present four recommendations which, if adopted, should bring in more revenue next year. This extra money will probably be devoted to intra-mural sports, the committee being quite determined that something must be done to remedy the present situation. Unfortunately, since most of the work falls on three or four members of the Council, there has been little time this year for the promotion and encouragement of this very important branch of campus activity.

Several other matters of relative importance will be discussed and it is hoped that a good representation of the student body will turn up — at least enough for a quorum, without which any decision can be reached. In former years, there has inevitably been difficulty in getting the minimum of 100 assembled. Questions will be welcomed, but in order that brief, clear answers may be assured, the committee would

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH OLD MCGILL?

ATHLETICS at McGill next session are assured of better control than has been their lot in many a year. The election of Everett Crutchlow to the presidency of the Students' Society, together with the assurance of smooth co-ordination in the Students' Athletics Council—now completing its baptismal year of operation—form a strong combination against any tendencies toward anarchy which have been a recent Daily editorial. This latter body has had a particularly rough row to hoe, since it assumed on itself most of the work formerly carried out by the Athletic Board, which has had occasion to meet only twice this year. Sorely-needed Award changes have been completed, and the new Budget plan for undergraduate athletics will be presented by the Crutchlow-Nolan-Minnion investigating committee at an open meeting of the Students' Society next Monday.

Perhaps all too few people are aware of the significant contribution which Everett Crutchlow has made to the administration of athletics at McGill in the past few years. First as a member of the Boxing Club, then as Senior Track Manager, Ev has been right in the thick of sports since he entered McGill. As student members of the Athletic Board, he and Hollie McHugh made known the desire of the undergraduates to control their own sports, and were largely responsible for the formation of the new Council. Crutchlow's experience on executive financial committees has proved invaluable to the work of the Council in its initial year, and all interested students will have an opportunity of hearing him outline certain Budget changes which are being recommended to the Executive of the Students' Society, especially in connection with the financial relationships between the University and the Council. All undergraduates will be well-advised to be on hand next Monday, at 5 o'clock for this open meeting.

The Gymnasium, incidentally, is still being built. Dr. A. S. Lamb, who as Director of Physical Education is a moving spirit in the campaign, assures us that the planning committee is this week making its final computations on the minimum amount required for its erection, and the campaign will then be ready to swing into its next stage. The Armoury advocates, with their $100,000 Sword of Damocles, still present a problem, but we trust that this will be overcome by one means or another.

The Dominion Ski Championships just concluded at Banff should prove several things in connection with this growing sport. First, of course, is the evidence that the Europeans are still superior in downhill and slalom. Well do we remember the beautiful sight of Pierre Francioli swishing between the flags and across the finish line with a great bound in the I.S.U. event on Mount Baldy a fortnight ago.

McGill's skiers need suffer under no inferiority complex, as the Banff meet shows—even though Pat Christie, the wandering ex-freshman star, fell a bit too often. The trend is to tougher courses for the top-notchers, and all four events in the I.S.U. meet here were the hardest tests, that have ever been laid for college ski-men, and probably as tough as any others previous to the Banff meet. The Red and White parkies ranked right up there with the men who started out West, and our chances look bright for next year with Captain Tom Denton the only team member slated to graduate. The Annual Meeting of the Ski Club, which has one of the largest membership lists on the campus, is being held on Tuesday next in the Union Ballroom at 5.30, for presentation of reports and election of officers for the 1937-38 season.

There's one matter that has been particularly gratifying to us this term, and that is the way in which the co-eds have taken up the challenge to handle their own sports reporting and publicity. The girls had been getting the short end of the stick, to put it mildly, in the matter of Page Three space. But no one seemed willing to do anything about it until Mary Richmond came along a couple of months ago and proceeded to put the co-eds capers on a paying basis—as witness the Bronze Baby show. We're sure that Miss Beatrice ("Buzz" to you) Barclay will be able to follow Lorraine Strachan's lead in co-operation very faithfully indeed.

Latest flashes in the sports news include the launching of dinghy racing as an intercollegiate sport, and interfaculty soccer—indoors. Then, to prove that Spring is here, believe it or not, comes Indoor Baseball. Jim Patrick has relinquished the job of manager of the loop to Tom Schofield and Hugh Purdie, and proceeded to lead Arts to a 26-16 victory over the champion Meds in the opener yesterday. The two Physical Ed. boys are looking after the ball league as their last project before graduation, following as impressive a record as any other pair have ever set up in a two-year period.

McGill students will join with the great sporting public in tribute to the late Howie Morenz at the funeral this afternoon at 2.30 in the Forum. . . The Daily ceases publication for the term with the MonGrel issue next Thursday, but the critics are having their last crack tomorrow under Editor-in-chief "Fritz" Dugal and his balmy band of Plumbers. We take great pleasure in introducing Jack Ross, B.W.&P. captain, as sports editor for the issue, but we're quaking in our shoes over some of the vitriol that they have in store for us. So we'll get this one off right away: How are they going to explain that light-heavyweight flop at Toronto, Jack?

Arts Baseball Team Trims Meds 26-16

First Step Towards Championship — Dean, Owen Star

Beginning their march to victory, the Arts Interfaculty Baseball nine last night met and trimmed a squad from the Medicine Faculty. The game was anybody's up until the sixth inning when the Artsmen crossed the plate fifteen times before they were finally retired. The final score was 26-16.

The Arts team opened the scoring in the first inning when Mialap singled and Graves drove him home with a double. But in their half of the inning the Meds came right back and ran up a three-run lead. In the second Arts again took the lead by scoring three runs. Things went along pretty even right up until the sixth at which time the Meds were leading by the score of 7-5. At this point the Med pitcher weakened visibly and the Artsmen took advantage of this and pounded him for

Quebec Aces Win Playoff Tilt From Royals, Score 5-1

Capital City Hockeyists Hold Two Game Advantage In Playoffs

Playing before a jammed arena, the Aces from Quebec gave their fans a real treat by clipping the haughty Royals to the tune of 5-1 last night at Quebec. The hockeyists from the Capital take a commanding lead in the Senior Group playoffs leading by 2-0 in games played. The third game in the three-out-of-five series will be played on the weekend at the Forum.

The Aces have certainly made a success of their entry in the Senior Group. Stepping up from the intermediate ranks last year to what is most certainly a Senior Group title this year, Doudreau sent the home team into the lead at 4-2 and Jack O'Connell made it 2-0 on a solo dash.

The second period saw the home boys make it real decisive by slamming in two more goals from the sticks of Fortin and McIntyre. The Aces took up where they left off in the third period, with Brennan notching the fifth goal. Buster Munday robbed Alex Bolduc of a well-earned shut-out by scoring with one minute to play.

Intermediate Cagers Play "Y" Tonight

Red Team Fighting Against Three Point Handicap

With still another game to go against Southwestern "Y", the Intermediate basketballers, carrying a three-point deficit, have more than a fighting chance to come through with the championship of the Intermediate "A" section of the city league, in the two game, total goal playoff. The game takes place at the High School tonight.

McGill surprised everyone on Tuesday night, when they showed some real class against the fast-stepping "Y" squad, the same team that handed the Redmen a rather decisive beating earlier in the year. The last time the McGill seconds won the city title was in 1923, just nine years ago when they beat the Sun Life cagers 20-24. If Van's Boys can flash the same form that they displayed in Tuesday night's game, they should come through with the goods. Fred Urquhart's Boys, on the other hand, are far from being a push-over, and are prepared to give McGill a real battle before saying "Uncle".

but never, never brogues". But a supporter of the other school of thought said, "... on-letted brogues, or some heavy walking shoes are the most suitable things to wear with everyday clothes."

"Garmie" writes that a "plain, tailored, preferably woollen" dress in a smart dark colour is ideal for football or hockey games, even when they are followed by dancing. One of the co-ed's most useful frocks, according to the same writer, is the dinner-dress, long, with an "officially" high neck.

Brooks sweaters were a general favorite. "Betty" urged that one make a hobby of collecting sweaters. "Dolly the Date" writes that "an assortment of bright Brooks sweaters and a serge or tweed skirt ... makes a good foundation for a co-ed's wardrobe." The general preference was for long-sleeved sweaters, with short-sleeved blouses for warm spring days.

According to "Vive la Vogue", a co-ed "needs two evening dresses, one of which is not too spectacular ... a smart fur-trimmed velvet coat ... with white carriage-boots and gloves for the Prom."

As spring approaches, "every co-ed should add to her wardrobe one of these and colour to suit her personality."

Oops, My Mistake!

A burglar who recently looted a fraternity house at the University of Southern California made a sad, sad error. Frightened from his pilferings by the return of the rightful owner of the goods involved, he decided to make a break for it, trusting to his speedy lower limbs to carry him to safety.

He ran down the dark avenue as fast as he could go, but faster footsteps gained on him. Before he got a block away, he was tackled from behind by Harold Smallwood, 400 meter champion of the United States.
